BUCKNELL UNIVERSITY

LEWISBURG, PENNSYLVANIA

Dedicated to the Memory of Dr. Allan Gates Halline

No finer spirit ever graced the Bucknell campus

A teacher, a scholar, a valuable friend

Cut off at the height of his creativeness, he leaves behind

An enviable record of achievement

Widely known in the field of American literature

He served as secretary of the American literature section of

The Modern Language Association of America

One of his last remarks—I wish I could have done more

A contagious human sympathy

Tolerance based on deep experience and high ethical standards

A man of gentleness and wisdom

His life centered around his home, his family, and the work he loved

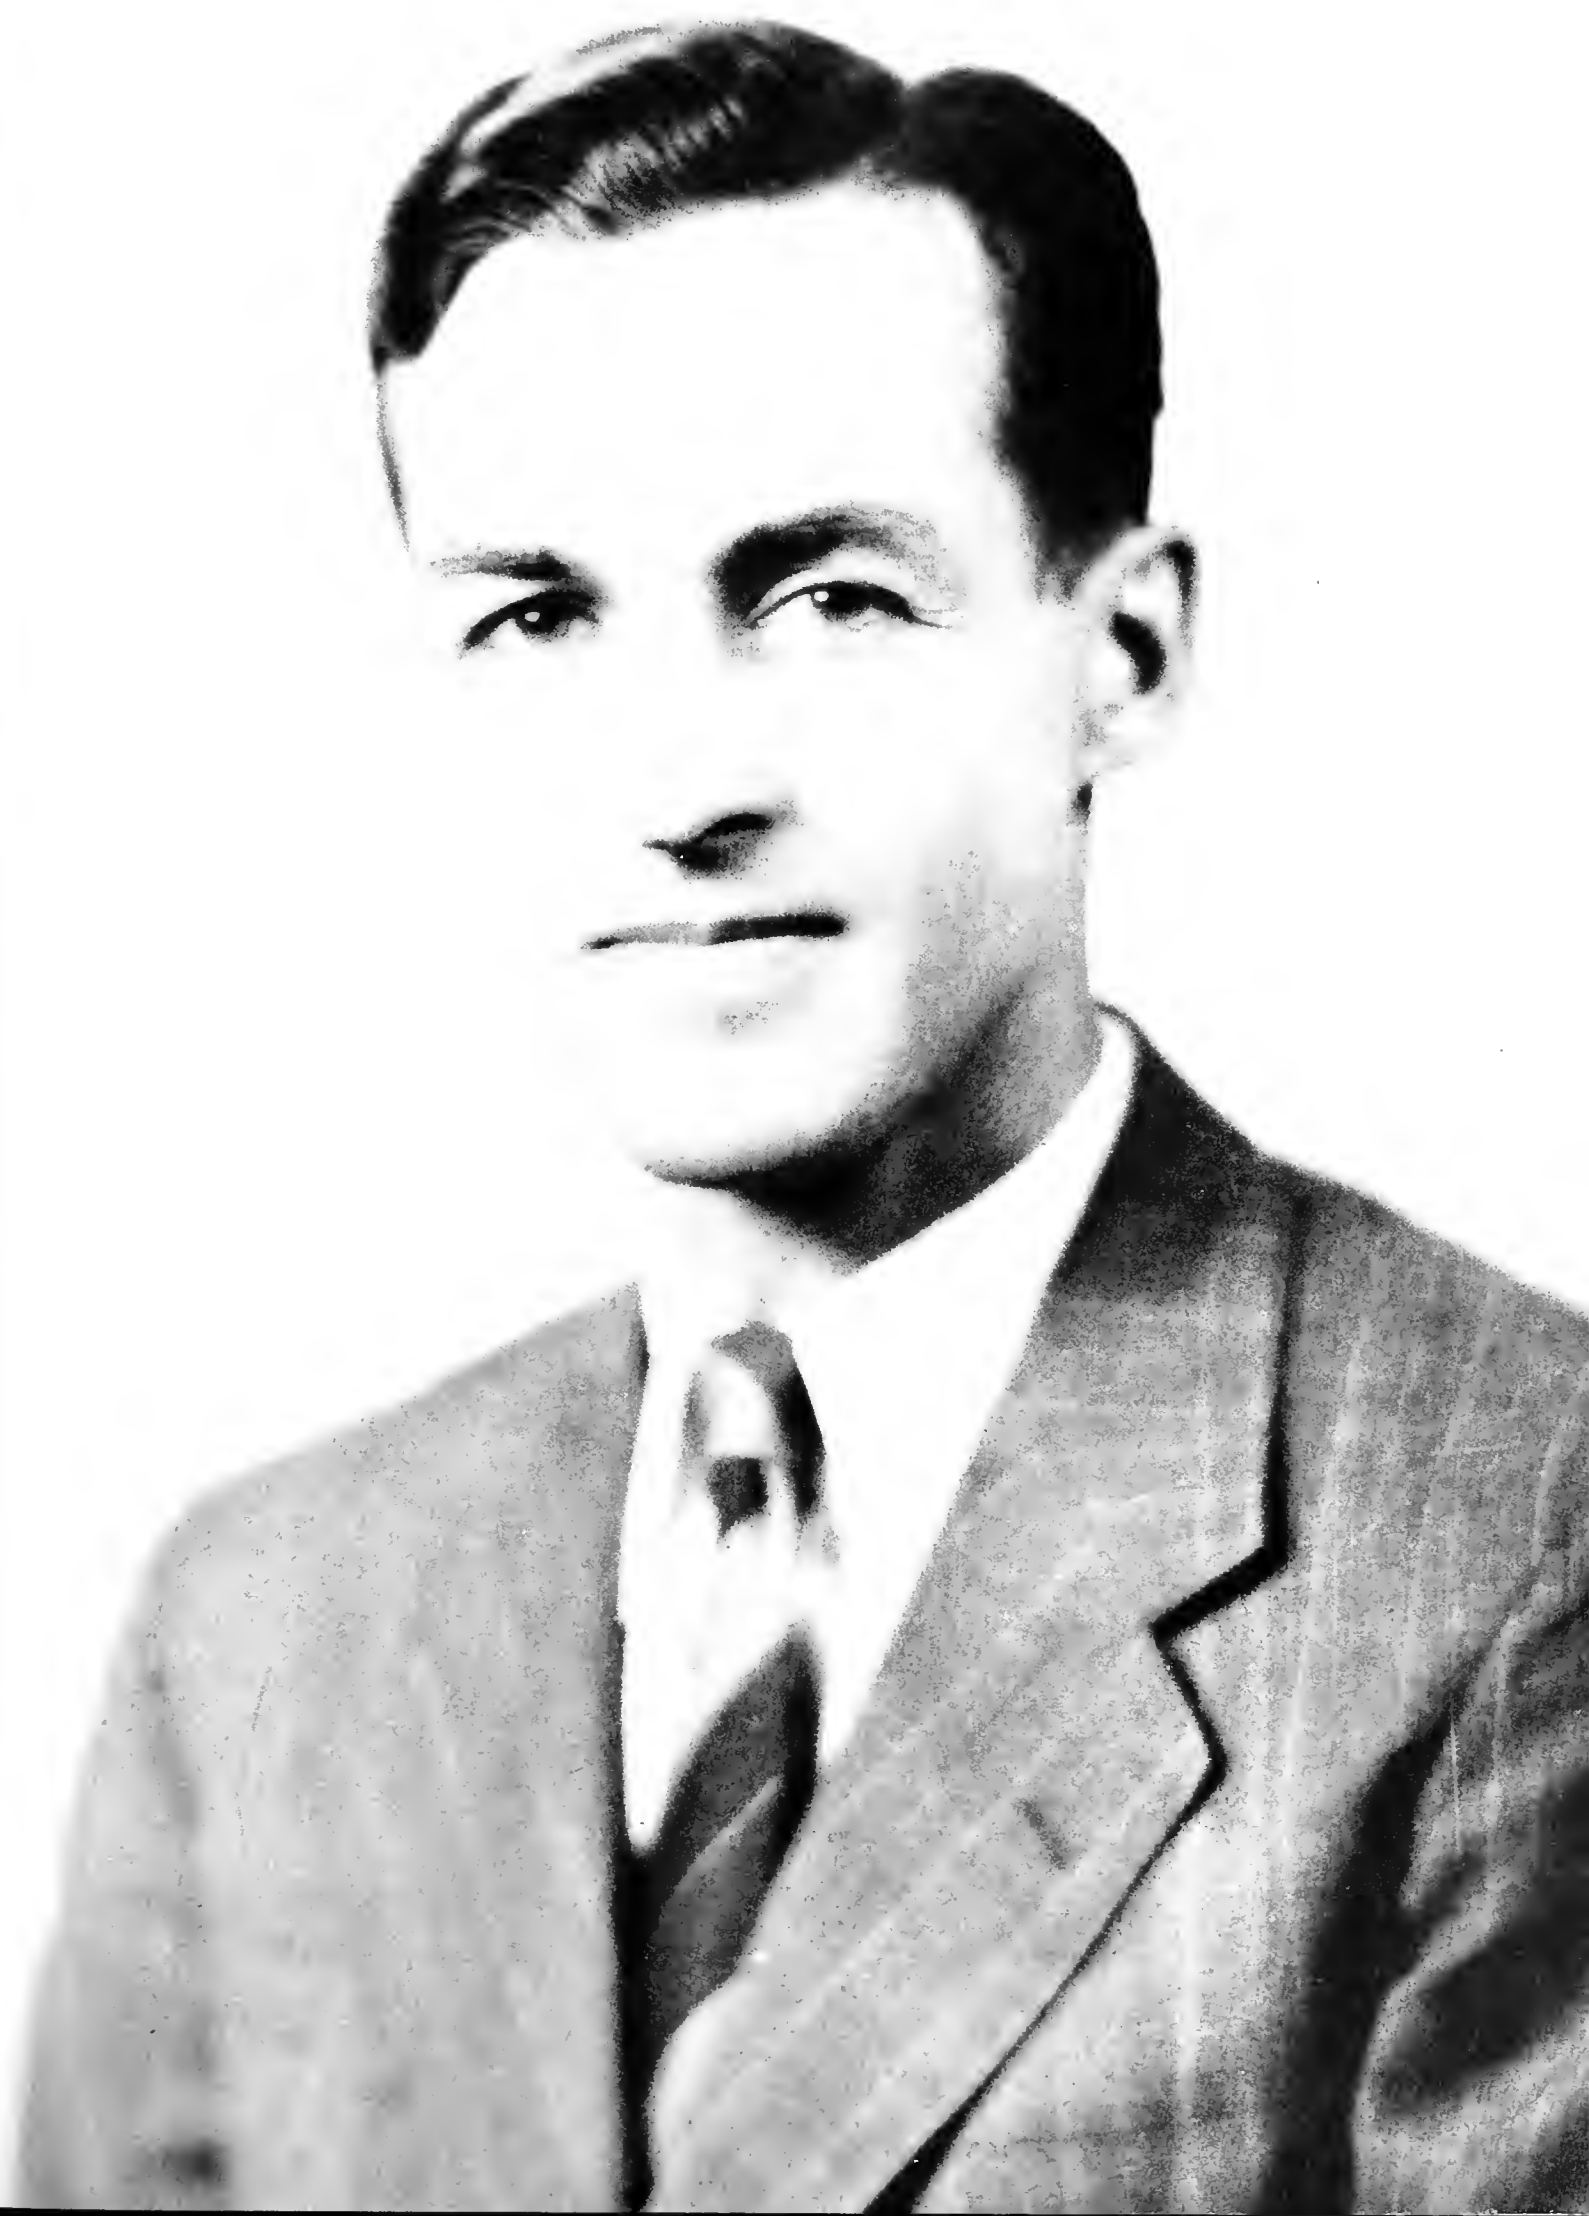

A man of courage

He faced death without fear, without bitterness

A man whose mind knew beauty, whose soul sought truth

To speak with him was to rediscover tranquility

A man greatly beloved

By preparing for publication a detailed statement of her objectives as a University, Bucknell proved once again that she is a leader among the country's educational institutions.

As stated in the catalogue, the purpose of Bucknell is to provide an educational program with three major goals: the student's development of the qualities and abilities essential for effective living in a democracy, his acquisition of the knowledge and skills necessary for professional and personal success, and his growth as a well-rounded member of society, with social consciousness, spiritual insights, and an active interest in the affairs of the community, the nation, and the world.

The 1952 L'AGENDA attempts to illustrate the accomplishment of Bucknell's objectives by a selective choice of material. Under the main headings—administration, classrooms and the faculty, extra-curricular activities, sports, and the events of every-day living—we show how the University strives to attain her three goals. We present Bucknell as we know her—Bucknell as we will remember her.

Establishing Our Goals

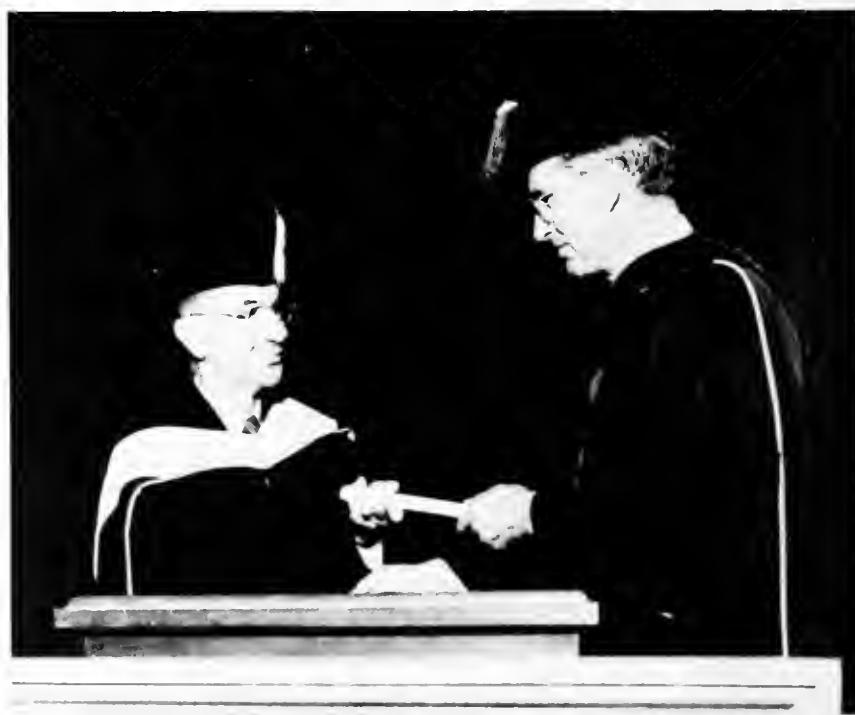

PRESIDENT

HORACE AUGUSTUS HILDRETH.

President

Easily Bucknell's outstanding "Man of the Year," President Horace A. Hildreth also possesses the popular gift of informality. We know him as a frank person and value the convocations at which he pulls no punches on subjects from the draft to dating. New England hospitality characterizes the Hildreth home, and its doors are ever open to students. Mutual respect is the keynote in our relationship with the president, who so well personifies the objectives of Bucknell.

Promoting Effective Careers

Scholarship Organizations

Exceptional scholastic ability, a mature personality, and intense worldly interests are the qualities which equal Phi Beta Kappa. The "Phi Bete" is a leader, an actor on the stage of world affairs and citizenship. His is not a narrow niche in society, for he treads the broadest avenues of knowledge and understanding.

Freshmen take their first step toward a Phi Beta Kappa key with membership in two scholastic honoraries, Phi Eta Sigma for men, Alpha Lambda Delta for women.

Good citizens and good scholars are recognized for outstanding achievement by Omicron Delta Kappa (men), Mortar Board (senior women), and "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Twelve senior women are recognized for their abilities in many fields by being elected to live in Honor House for their last year.

Aesthetics

ART

Notice the beauty of that line

Buried among plaster figures and innumerable easels and drawing boards, dwell the art students. Any day of the week, any hour of the day, one can find budding artists, pencils poised, scattered over campus. Other students, not quite so talented, have sleepy memories of slides shown and explained by department head, Blanchard Gummo. Bruce Mitchell, our artist-in-residence, is instrumental in arranging lectures and exhibitions.

MUSIC

Running at a definitely allegro pace, the Music School finished the year with its largest enrollment ever. Dr. Harold Cook holds the baton for a department which produces a fine counterpoint between curricular and extra-curricular tunes. A music major's repertoire of activities may include the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs, Chapel Choir, Band, Symphony Orchestra, and Mixed Chorus. The top note of the scale is membership in Mu Phi Epsilon, music honorary.

ENGLISH

No Bucknellian will ever forget the harrowing experience of the oral quiz, the mountain of filing cards for a research paper, or the fact that Agamemnon died in his bathtub. Yet the wonders of the English department include more than the argyle socks knitted during Lit lecture. We find courses to suit the most discriminating, from Anglo-Saxon to modern drama, from basic composition to the hallowed Honors Seminar.

The divisions of the department permit English majors to specialize in the field of their choice, whether it be writing, literature, drama, speech, or journalism. In between writing scholarly dissertations and marking papers, which, like the porridge of fairy tale fame, never diminish, the English faculty advises an astonishing number of extra-curricular organizations. Emphasis has been placed this year on the English Clinic, which aids students of other departments who have special problems with the language.

Dr. Harry Robbins, department head, advises Sigma Tau Delta, the English honorary. This group annually feasts its members at an initiation banquet, where the world's fund of literary masterpieces is augmented by original works written by the pledges for the occasion. Sigma Tau Delta completed a full schedule this year, with a tea for all English majors held last Fall, and a series of book discussions, beginning with F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby.

Gee Eli, it's swell, really swell!

Enter the sanctuary of battens and dutchmen, and watch the mysterious witches' brew bubbling on the battered stove, or sneak into Bucknell Hall some afternoon to learn the technique of a believable stage kiss. The Drama major, a recent addition to the English department, includes courses in both theory and practice. Among the practical may be numbered Willard Smith's excursions into the rites of backstage work and set designs, Harvey Powers' courses in dramatic interpretation, and, of course, the lab work provided by Cap and Dagger. Students also study the drama as a form of literary expression. Our drama majors may never reach Broadway, but they can recognize a scrim at fifty paces, and you can be sure they always know which end is upstage.

JOURNALISM AND SPEECH

The power of the written word and the well-turned phrase is not neglected by this department, which enables students to specialize in Journalism or Speech. Although both subjects are taught in the classroom, the all-important practical training is gained through participation in related activities. For the journalists, lab period is held three afternoons a week in the Bucknellian office, where they learn what it means to write copy under the threatening shadow of a deadline. Speech majors may engage in a variety of activities, including radio work, but their chief experience is gained through participation in the debate team, which devoted its talents this year to a consideration of the national question of wage and price control.

The warm friendliness that is so often associated with the Spanish speaking countries is characteristic of the students and professors of the Spanish department. Consuelo Campuzano, head resident of La Casa Española, joins with other department members for weekly conversation hours when students may experiment with their proficiency in the language. Professor Frank Sprague, department head, may often be found discussing the picaresque novel or the drama of the Golden Age, two of the numerous courses offered. The primary objective of Sigma Delta Pi, national Spanish honorary, lies in the study of the customs and ideas of Spain and other nations.

Today it would seem that Caesar came, saw, and conquered most students who have ever studied Latin. Dr. Harold Miller combines a rare knowledge of his subject with such unfailing charm and subtle humor that students willingly struggle with Latin translations and Greek verbs. A course in Latin and Greek Derivatives builds vocabulary and is indispensable to all crossword puzzle fans.

The German Department, under Dr. Adolf Frantz, stresses the practical, as well as the literary importance of the subject, and students often gather at das Deutsches Haus for song fests or to read German newspapers. Courses include studies of the great classical works as well as modern literature and teaching methods.

PHILOSOPHY

"Bucknell as we leave thee, integrated are we." This is the first line of a song composed by several graduating members of the now famous University Course. The thought behind the words, however, may well be applied to all courses of the Philosophy Department, which has brought the classic study down from its ivory tower and related it to every phase of education. Whether you are interested in art, literature, business, or just staying alive, philosophy has just the course for you, from the abstracts of Logic to the grim realities of Contemporary Moral Issues.

Dr. W. Preston Warren heads a department which may be justly proud of tremendous strides in the important field of integrated education.

PSYCHOLOGY

Aided by everything from hamsters to machines that test reaction time, the psychology students delve into the problems of human behavior. Students who elect a major in psychology can concentrate on such fields as genetics, experimental-theoretical, chemical-measurement, psychodynamics, and applied-industrial.

A new addition to the Psychology department, headed by Dr. Phillip Harriman, is Psi Chi, National Psychology Fraternity. Members must have either a major or minor in the subject, and must rank in the upper half of their class. Wendell Smith advises this group, which maintains interest in psychology through meetings, speakers, and occasional trips to Danville Mental Hospital.

RELIGION

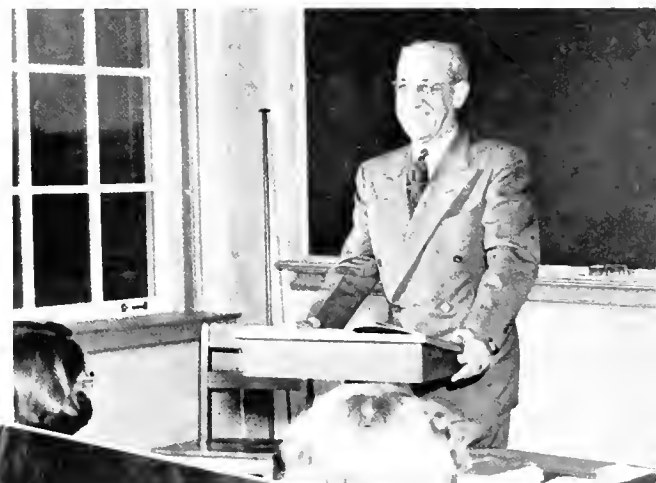

Far from concerning itself purely with preparing students for the ministry, the Religion Department emphasizes the importance of understanding and appreciating other religions as well as the inter-relationships of the various faiths in our country today. Churches of all denominations are conscious of a grave need for leaders in the field, and the work of the Religion Department, in conjunction with the Christian Association, helps to fill this need. Dr. Charles M. Bond, head of the department, includes psychology and philosophy as well as religion in his curriculum.

An informal religious club, Kappa Chi Lambda, has been organized to provide an association for the men and women interested in religious work.

Located in West College, the Commerce and Finance department is composed of finance and banking, accounting, marketing, business management, secretarial practice, and general economics. This curriculum affords the student instruction in theoretical and practical economics.

The Society for the Advancement of Management and the Marketing Club add to the student's knowledge of business and engage in many year-round activities. Delta Mu Delta, National Economics Fraternity, is advised by C and F department head Clyde Burgee and Dr. Rudolph Peterson.

HISTORY

History students should be equally at ease discussing the westward expansion, the Reformation, or the art of the Greeks, for the department integrates the study of history with other fields through guest lecturers on many subjects. Dr. Cyrus Karraker heads the department, and also advises the National History Fraternity, Phi Alpha Theta. Integrated study qualifies the history majors to enter many fields after graduation.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

Political Science students are familiar with the New York papers and the daily happenings of the world. This department affords the student an opportunity to gain an insight into the theories of national and international government, public and foreign relations, and diplomatic policies. Dr. James Gathings, department head, hopes to increase our awareness of international problems both through courses and the work of Pi Sigma Alpha and the International Relations Club.

SOCIOLOGY

Before embarking on any advanced study of sociology, students must become familiar with the peculiar language associated with the subject—frames of reference, “the hen-pecking order,” and “culture.” Dr. DuWors, department head, is directing a curriculum which emphasizes the analytical rather than the descriptive approach. Far from being an abstract study, sociology looks critically at modern problems of communication and industry. Alpha Kappa Delta is the national honorary.

MATHEMATICS AND ASTRONOMY

Now that the philosophers are regarding higher mathematics as the only true absolute, the subject has become more than a method of disciplining the minds of students. Following the axiom that "Euclid alone has looked on beauty bare," the math whizzes see principal concepts in equations and fundamental truths in equilateral triangles. An average of twenty-five students a year are tapped for membership in Pi Mu Epsilon, national mathematics honorary, advised by department head Dr. Clarence H. Richardson.

The heavens serve as one of the best textbooks for the Astronomy department, headed by John S. Gold, who combines a descriptive study of the universe with practical lab techniques.

Gertrude once said, "A rose is a rose is a rose." But Botany students learn that this statement is not altogether true, for there are many different kinds of roses — the red rose, the American Beauty, the de-thorned rose, and Rose Schultz, who sits in the second row. Botanists are familiar with plants from the greenhouse, as well as those of wild variety. The department is happy to announce that the mortality rate due to Venns Fly-traps is very low this year. An extensive research paper is required for initiation into Phi Sigma, biological fraternity.

The bio students settle down for an evening picnic as part of their survey of the mountain streams near Halfway. White Deer Creek is host to an eager group of evolutionists in search of glacial rocks or fossils, while the "birding" enthusiasts may be found haunting the marshes of Montandon.

In Phi Sigma, national biology honorary, students engage in various independent research projects as requisites for initiation. Encouraged by Dr. Norman Stewart, head of the department, studies are now being conducted in the fields of hamster nutrition, blood groups, and medical advertising. These studies, in addition to many group activities, give students an opportunity to learn more about the field of their choice.

When you spot a student carrying apples, oranges, or even toy blocks, don't raise your eyebrows. He's only on his way to give a lesson in arithmetic to his fellow elementary ed. majors. These prospective school mams and masters try to create typical schoolroom situations in their classes, and their workshop in the Carnegie Building is filled with aquariums, doll houses, and hamsters. The Elementary Education Club is undertaking the project of obtaining a collection of children's books for the Ellen Clarke Bertrand Library to benefit Lewisburg children as well as Education majors.

Branches of the four major engineering societies give BU engineers a chance to talk shop and learn more about their subject. They are: The American Institute of Chemical Engineers, The American Society of Civil Engineers, The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and The American Society of Electrical Engineers.

Members hear talks, prepare papers, and make inspection trips. These activities and others are coordinated by the Engineering Council, composed of two members from each society. Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honorary, is limited to juniors and seniors with exceptional grades.

CHEMICAL

The chemical engineer plays an important roll in manufacturing. By studying the design, construction, and operation of equipment in which chemical or physical changes occur, he develops methods through which products can be produced more economically.

The study of chemical engineering is based on a firm foundation of chemistry, physics, and mathematics combined with a knowledge of economics and business practice. Laboratory work plays an important part in all engineering, and chemical engineering is no exception. This work includes the study of the problems in production, the unit-operations, metallurgy, and the layout of a modern chemical plant.

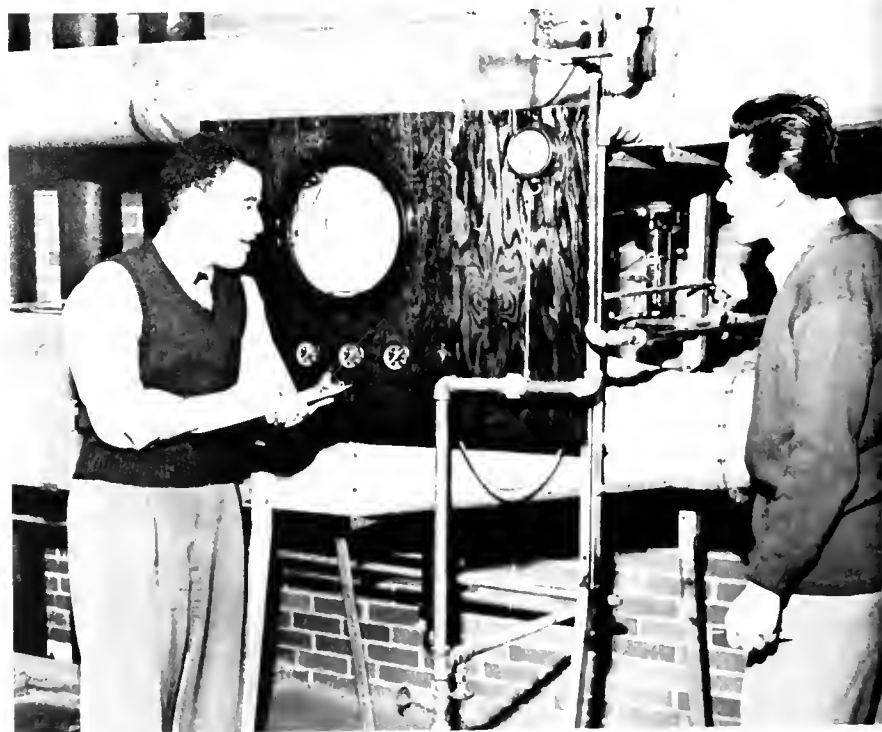

Professor Sims heads the department which each year conducts a week-long trip to industrial areas.

CIVIL

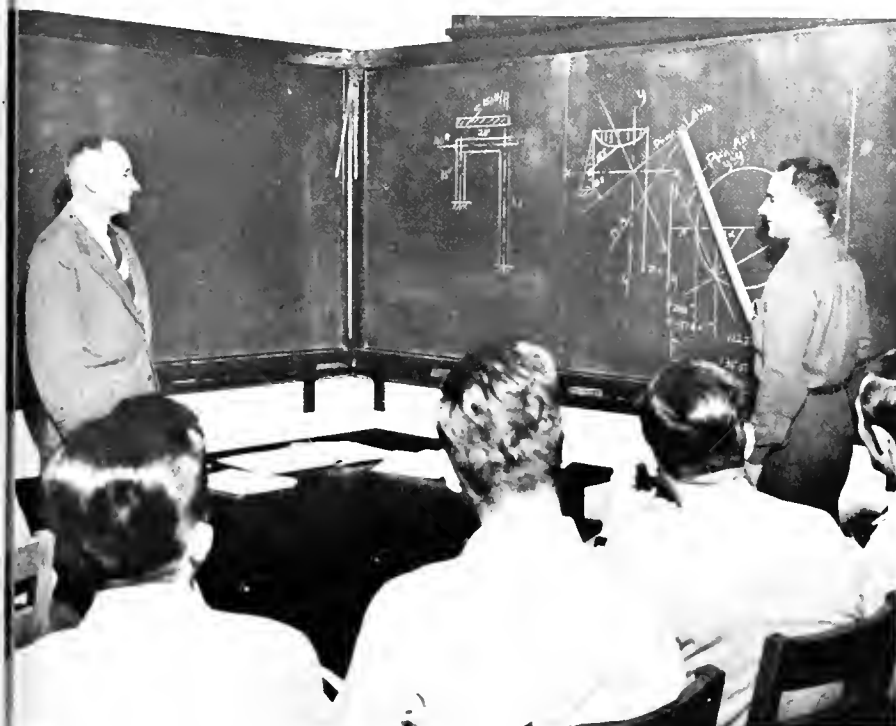

Civil engineering is a dynamic profession which is constantly expanding with the introduction of new problems. Gone are the days when the CE dealt mainly with the construction of roads, canals, and docks. New ideas present new problems for the civil engineer.

The CE course is arranged to provide emphasis upon mathematics, physics, surveying, and mechanics. Working on a foundation of these subjects, the student also studies geology, water supply, structural theory and design, and the law of contracts.

Professor Griffith and his staff also provide valuable lab training for the student. Surveying, work in soils, and the hydraulic laboratory are all covered in the extensive lab work of the civil engineer.

ELECTRICAL

Almost every activity in civilized life depends upon a science that was born just sixty-five years ago.

Electrical engineering studies lighting, power, and communications, making it necessary for the EE to study the design and manufacture of apparatus, the generation of electrical power, and many other broad fields.

Bucknell laboratories are equipped to give experimental work in direct and alternating current machinery, transients, motor control, and electronics. Besides these facilities, a fifty-watt amateur radio telegraph station is available for the use of students who hold amateur licenses.

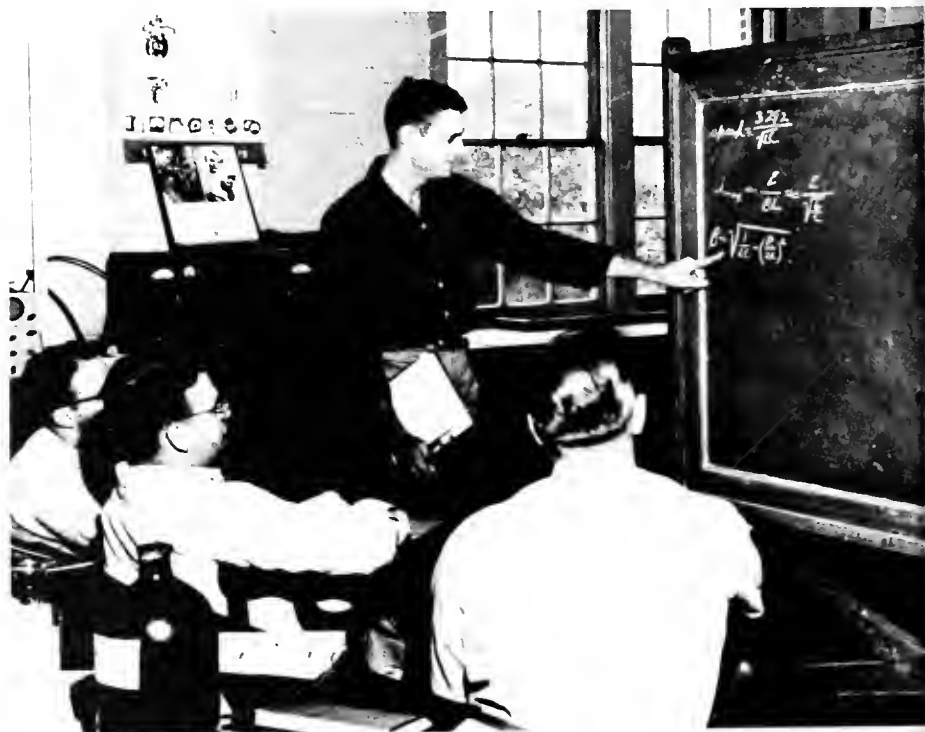

The department, headed by Professor Irland, has prepared men for varied work in this field for over thirty years.

MECHANICAL

Theory + lab work = Mechanical Engineering.

This brief equation sums up the work of Professor Garman and his department.

While the ME begins laboratory work, he must learn the principles behind the complicated machines in the laboratory. His class work includes mechanics, thermodynamics, machine design, and power plants. While mastering his engineering principles he works with machines in the lab where he casts and molds the tools he uses.

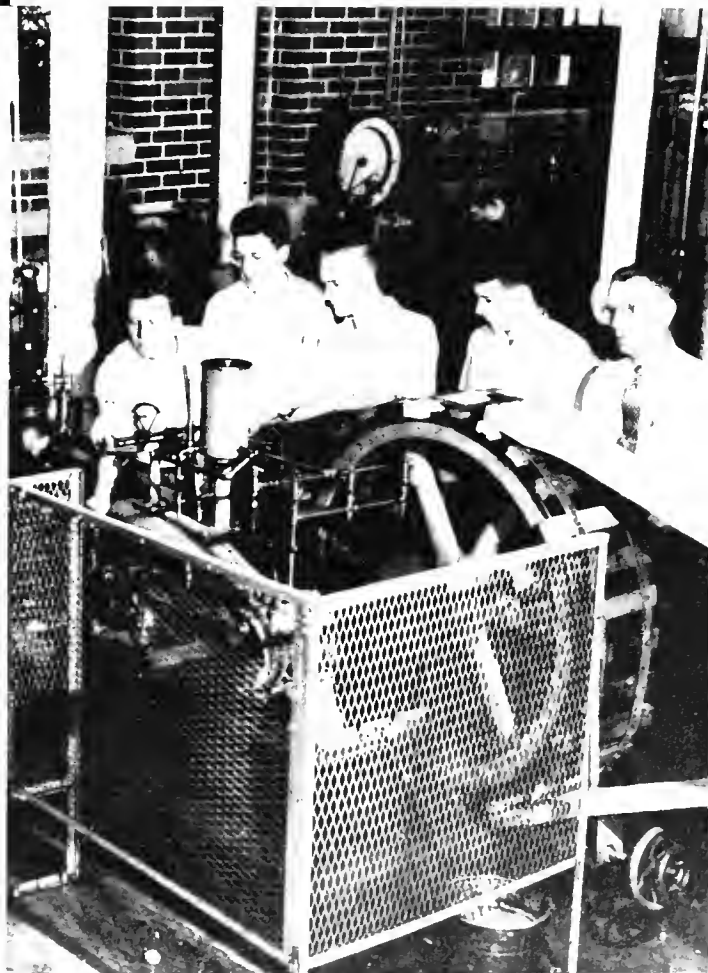

During his senior year, the mechanical engineer participates in a week-long inspection trip where he can see the wide scope of his field in such industrial areas as Pittsburgh or New York.

This practical experience adds to his rapidly accumulating knowledge of this broad field.

PHYSICS

By the audible snick-snack of a well powdered slide rule and the visible proof of the weird dancing of the oscilloscope pattern, one knows that he has entered the sanctuary of the physicists. It is in this Buck Rogers atmosphere that the pre-professional students and the physics majors assimilate the principles that have led to man-produced atomic fission and cancer-combatting x-rays. Here, too, the neophyte Einsteins coordinate the seemingly abstract theory of the textbooks with the reality of experimentation.

Dr. Lowry, department head, advises the Sigma Pi Sigma chapter.

GEOLOGY AND GEOGRAPHY

"And tomorrow we will go out and scratch rocks." This friendly invitation might be heard in any geology class. The explorers don their hiking boots, take up their alpenstocks, shake their hydrochloric acid, and prepare to fathom the mysteries of the earth. Under the direction of Department Head Paul Brand, students, learning everything from cartography to climatology, may well echo the words of Ogden Nash. "Look what you done, Christopher!"

STUDENT-FACULTY CONGRESS

Student Faculty Congress — it sounds important and it is! The entire appropriation of our student budget is handled by the Student Faculty Congress. Only with its supervision are such organizations as the Bucknellian, L'Agenda, the Christian Association and WVBV made possible. The invaluable experiences offered to us by the Artist Course are feasible because of a job well done by the S.F.C. The Congress devises, revises, and enforces all of the regulations peculiar to each class. The Student Faculty Congress is an active and prominent organization — a necessity at Bucknell.

WSGA is the women's bicameral democracy based on mutual respect, honor, and integrity. Underlying all laws is the assumption that each co-ed is mature enough to uphold the Honor System and assume the responsibility of her conduct. This year the Women's Student Government Association has stressed the new decentralization program which strives to give individual houses and dormitories more power in settling their problems. Recommended changes to the constitution by the Senate were passed and have been executed. And the Honor System, as the main spring of the organization, has greatly matured.

UNIVERSITY PLAYERS

Old Heidelberg was the setting for the March production of "The Student Prince," and the campus beat time to "Drink, Drink, Drink" and sang snatches of "Serenade" walking to class. The annual University Players' musical employs the talents of eight campus groups, including Cap and Dagger, Theta Alpha Phi, Men's and Women's Glee Clubs, Band, Symphony Orchestra, Art Club, and Orchestra, and the time and energy of over two hundred students.

CAP AND DAGGER

Jim Clitter sleeps under Nancy Schreiner's hypnotic spell in this scene from "Heartbreak House"

The 1951-1952 season was one of innovations and varied presentations. Last May saw the English premiere of "Leocadia," translated from the French by Bucknell students. C&D went on to give Shaw's difficult "Heartbreak House" in November, Brecht's "The Good Woman of Setzuan" in January, and Maxwell Anderson's "Anne of a Thousand Days" for May Day and Commencement. Other highlights of the year included a going away party for Willard Smith and participation in "The Student Prince."

A recent addition to the Bucknell catalogue is the one hundred dollar prize offered for any original play considered worthy of production by C&D. The group has continued to sponsor the University Theatre Fund, which has grown steadily from a modest beginning of fifteen dollars to a total of over ten thousand at present.

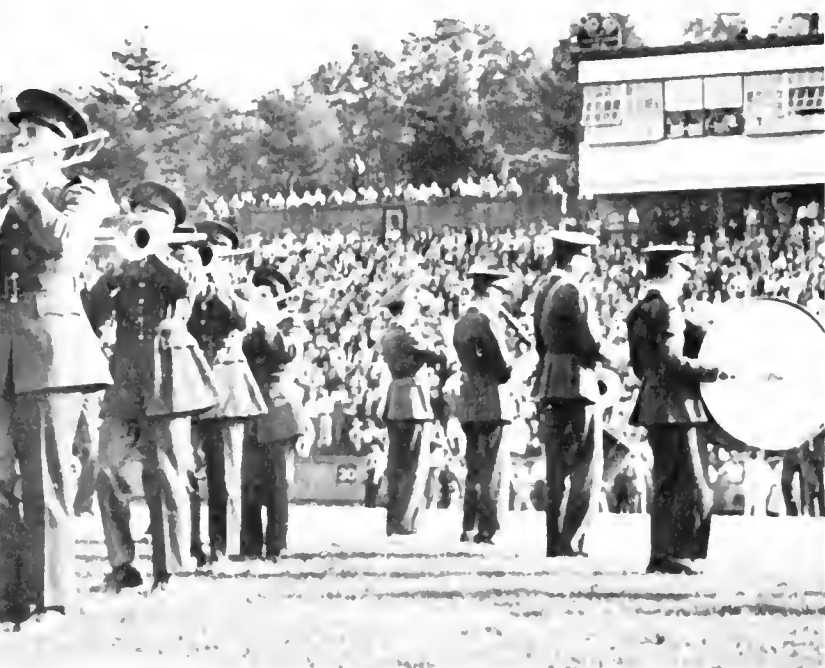

All tuned up and ready to go

It seemed as though everyone in the band had two left feet as the season began. However, under the able direction of Mr. Allen Flock, the band soon shaped up into a snappy marching organization.

After only two days practice, the band began the football season by performing at the Chocolate Bowl in Hershey. The orange and blue uniforms also added color and spirit to all the home games during the football season, and the Gettysburg, Lehigh, and Lafayette away games.

The activities of the band did not end with the football season. Instead, the members organized into a concert band and continued practicing throughout the winter. Their final activity of the year was the annual spring concert held in the Lewisburg High School auditorium.

Screech! Boom! Clank! Toot! Practice time for the Bucknell Symphony Orchestra comes every Monday night, in preparation for its full yearly schedule. Under the direction of Mr. Allen Flock, the Orchestra accompanies at a great many musical events. Its first appearance was at the annual convocation. It has since participated in the Sunbury Music Festival in November, in the University Players production, and in its own Spring concert. It gave its annual performance at the Christmas and Easter chapel services, at the presentation of Handel's Messiah, and will conclude this year's activities at commencement.

CHAPEL CHOIR

Forty people who don't have to worry about chapel credits

This year the Chapel Choir has grown to approximately fifty voices under the capable direction of Professor William McRae. The group sang in Wilkes-Barre, Bloomsburg, Harrisburg, and Williamsport, and other surrounding communities. In addition, a concert tour was planned for the Rochester, New York area last winter. As well as singing in the weekly exercises, the group participated in the traditional Christmas music chapel service. The choir made recordings of these holiday carols which are available in album form.

"Were you there . . . ?"

Mr. McRae, are the basses too loud?

MIXED CHORUS

The Mixed Chorus ushers in Christmas with the traditional "Messiah"

"For all musicians; for all music lovers," could very well be the slogan for the Mixed Chorus. Interested students, faculty members, and local residents, forming a group of about 100 voices, worked together to produce two annual holiday programs.

The weekly rehearsals are conducted by Dr. Harold Cook, of the music department. At Christmas time Handel's Messiah was presented, and at Easter-tide another performance was given by the versatile group.

The 75-voice Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Dr. Harold E. Cook, once again sang its way into communities throughout the east this year during their annual winter tour. This season's travels took the songsters through the New York State and Metropolitan areas, with concerts in many cities, including Rochester, Albany, and Syracuse. The highlight of the tour was the New York City Athletic Club concert. The entire planning and timing of the five day venture was in the hands of student managers Reg Hubley and Jim Gaidula. The club and its famed quartet also gave many performances in the immediate area during this '51-'52 season.

Miss Kleinfelter, the spark plug of the club

Under the direction of Miss Helen Kleinfelter, the Women's Glee Club made an extensive five day tour of Pennsylvania in March. This year, for variety, the group featured solos by their star pianist, Doris Potts, in place of the usual quartet selections. Novelty numbers formed an important part of the season's repertoire. One of the most popular is a song called "Jack and Jill," in which the quintet sings the nursery rhyme as Wagner, Chopin, or the opera would do it.

Campus Journalists

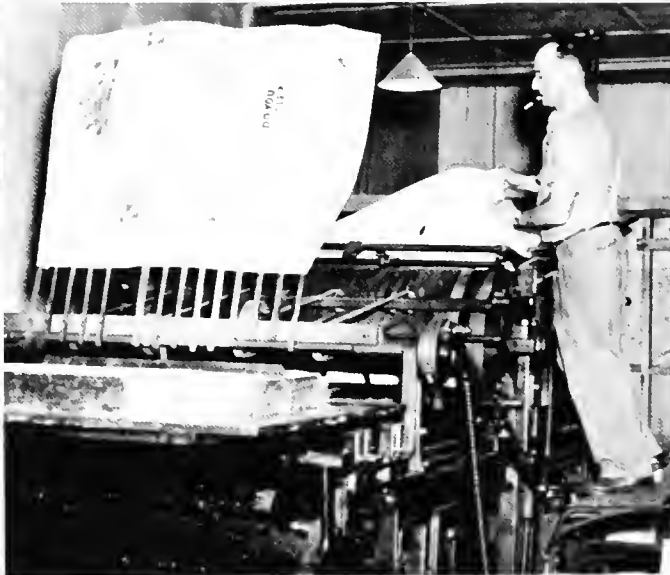

Now that they've doubled their goal, we're going to invest in a special adding machine for those hunt and peck specialists, Dave, Frank, and Tollie.

We will have more to remember than a book with a modern cover. For six months our lives centered around the little basement office in Roberts Hall, the coffee life line to Guy's, the steadily banging typewriters, the long cold walks down the hill in the dark when other, saner offices had closed shop long before. As we turn the pages, we'll remember AF's all night sessions in the darkroom, Hark's tussle with a recalcitrant cow, and the deadlines we met—for the first time in years. For you, we hope the book will be a symbol and a souvenir. For us, it became almost a way of life.

The Bucknellian

Harry Staley, first semester editor

Music to our ears

Joan Morris, second semester editor

A Friday afternoon visit to the office on Fifth Street will reveal none of the mass order in confusion that characterizes The Bucknellian's home. The empty room will reveal four typewriters gathering strength for their next week's ordeal, a floor dotted with crumpled papers, and the remains of many half-smoked cigarettes. Friday is rest day for the staff, with the possible exception of the editor, who spends it surveying the most recent issue of his brain child, and snarling quietly at hitherto unnoticed errors.

Monday afternoon, however, is a different story entirely. It is then that eight pages to be filled seem a monumental task, and the news of the week leaks in slowly from all over campus. News editors return triumphantly from the faithful box in Harris, and enb reporters puzzle over re-write jobs. Wednesday often finds the staff silently hoping for a calamity, major or minor, for their lead story, while the chief pulls editorials out of thin air. Somehow, that lead always materializes, the editorials are written, and the presses roll.

"Hey, kids, it's time for the Bitter End Show!" This familiar phrase is uttered by VooBoo fans who listen to the combination disk-jockey and request program.

WVBU presents a variety of programs throughout the year, including the hilarious "Jam Breakfast Show" and on-the-spot reporting of our football, basketball, and baseball games. Besides these, the station presents dramatic programs, news events, and special school programs. Also, it provides the student a chance to do his homework in bed while listening to the melodious records for Musie 100. VooBoo affords an excellent opportunity for those who wish to continue in the field of radio, as well as a good time for those who desire some real entertainment.

STUDENT HANDBOOK

Hey there frosh! Want to know something about Bucknell? Well, just leaf through the Student Handbook, and in a few minutes you will be so well informed about campus life that you could whip any Senior Tribunal's questionnaire. The Handbook, published annually by the Christian Association, is a miniature catalog, L'Agenda, and counselor's notebook all rolled into one. It contains everything from the Bucknell lingo to the formal constitution of the Women's Student Government Association. Designed to answer any questions which might arise about campus life, the Student Handbook is a true friend to all those who cross the threshold of the "300 Acres" into the Bucknell Way of Life.

As Campus Specialists

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

The many projects, the far reaching influence, the community and world wide coverage of the Christian Association are almost beyond comprehension. From the first day that a freshman arrives on campus, the CA begins to make itself felt in many ways. The frosh receives the Handbook, joins a fireside, and visits 9:30 Class and Student Church. As he continues his college career, he can find a CA activity to suit his inclinations along any line.

Under the leadership of its cabinet and General Secretary, the CA is affiliated with the Student Christian movement of the YMCA and is also a member of the World's Student Christian Federation. This year, under CA auspices, Bucknell began a close affiliation with two colleges in Burma. The annual Burma-Bucknell Weekend in November is recognized by our State Department as a major cause in the close understanding of the two countries.

The Middle Eastern Conference and Religion-in-Life-Week have brought outstanding speakers to campus, for further enlightenment on subjects both secular and spiritual.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity for college and university men with experience in the Boy Scouts, has in its short, two-year history at Bucknell performed many services to the school, community, and nation. Among this year's activities were the sponsoring of the bloodmobile and Red Cross drive on campus, acting as guides to visitors, and serving as advisors for local Boy Scout troops.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

"I never see a newspaper. Haven't heard a radio in weeks." Typical comments? Perhaps, but not to an active member of the International Relations Club. Headed by John M. Simmons and advised by Mr. Hollister, the IRC is a group of students who are genuinely interested in the world affairs of today—this being the requirement for membership. Highlighting this year's season was the model U.N. conference at Lehigh University, at which time the Bucknell delegates discussed the pressing problem of the United States' stand in regard to Kashmir and Palestine.

This year the Bucknell Debating Society provided a great deal of action for its debators as it took part in many intercollegiate tournaments. The group started another excellent season by winning three debates with Barnard, New York University, and Columbia early in November. In the course of the year the orators displayed their forensic ability in more than 75 other meets with eastern colleges. The national topic was "Wage and Price Controls" which proved an interesting challenge to our forensic group.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is interested in furthering the cause of civil rights on a national, state, and local scale. It sponsors such activities as the Howard Choir Concert, the Howard Dramatic Players, and annual conferences at Cowan among the negro and white students. This year NAACP was instrumental in establishing a student exchange program between Bucknell and the Hampton Institute of Virginia. Another big project is the annual Betty Ann Quinn Scholarship to help Bucknell negro students.

BUCKNELL INDEPENDENT STUDENT'S ASSOCIATION

The Bucknell Independent Student's Association rounded out one of its most active years to date, with well attended weekly meetings and social gatherings, forums, a winter formal, and a now traditional house-party weekend. As the only independent group on campus, B.I.S.A. plays an important part in student relations.

FOOTBALL

Bucknell's Thundering Herd rolled on and on and on. Even with a nine game season under their belts and thirteen consecutive victories to their credit, the Bisons kept piling on the laurels.

The impressive record posted by this year's squad was the best in the 67-year history of the pigskin sport at Bucknell. Numerous team, as well as individual records, were shattered as the charges of Harry Lawrence went through their undefeated and untied season and ran their consecutive win streak to 13 straight in two years. In romping to nine victories in one season, the Orange and Blue gridders broke the old record of eight wins compiled by the 1924 edition which had two losses to mar its record. The high-gearred offensive machine broke the Eastern Intercollegiate Football Association's all-time record held since 1945 by the Army team dominated by Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis. The Cadets 462.2 average yards total offense was shattered as the Herd finished out the season with 463.3 yards per game. In addition, the Orange and Blue also led the 29 other teams in the EIFA this year with 323.2 average yards rushing per game and ranked third in rushing defense, having allowed only 125.8 yards per game on the ground.

Individual rushing honors for the Bisons went to the Touchdown Juniors, Brad Myers and Burt Talmage. Both were outstanding at the halfback posts in the Split-T. Myers picked up 1069 yards on 171 attempts, while his running mate, Talmage, gained 1025 yards on 150 carries. Both broke the old EIFA record set by Dick Gabriel of 1023 yards in a single season. In so doing, the twins became the first backfield combination to top the 1000 yard mark in EIFA history. No one came close to challenging the twins for rushing honors, as Boston U.'s John Kastan finished third with 886 yards and Princeton's All-American Dick Kazmier came in fourth with 861 yards.

Myers and Talmage also tied for scoring leadership on the Bison squad, which saw fifteen men enter the column. Both scored 14 touchdowns for a total of 84 points. They finished in a dead heat for second place money in the Pennsylvania scoring derby — one point behind Fred Prender, of West Chester State Teachers. The Herd also gained laurels when they placed ten men on the All-Pennsylvania team and three men on the All-East squads. Co-captains George Young and Bob Albert played in the North-South Senior Bowl game in Birmingham, Alabama.

Next on the list was Kent State at Kent, Ohio. The gridgers met the Mid-American Conference squad for the first time and emerged the victor by a close 13-7 score. Then came the 62-32 lacing of Buffalo U which broke the Memorial Stadium scoring record in a wide-open Dad's Day game. Lafayette fell to the Bison axe 40-21 in a game that saw the Herd priming for the Temple battle only a week away. Then came the 28-7 thumping of Temple before a shivering Homecoming crowd of about 10,000. The Old Shoe remains. The

Colgate proved to be the toughest foe of the year as the Red Raiders at Hamilton, N. Y., held the Lawrencemen

Bison booters close in to break up a Delaware drive

The usually fast moving Bucknell soccer team was slowed down somewhat this year by a severe outbreak of colds and injuries early in the season.

The Bouncing Bunnies garnered victories over two opponents while dropping five contests. The All-American Penn State squad opened the season for the Bunnies with a 5-0 shutout at State College. Delaware came to the Davis Gym field and barely nosed out the Dibblemen 2-1. In three straight road trips that took the booters from one end of Pennsylvania to the other and into Maryland, the Orange and Blue gained two victories against one loss. The Herd lost only to Gettysburg 4-2, while downing Drexel by a similar score and drubbing Western Maryland 6-2.

In their last two contests, the Bunnies dropped decisions to F & M in a tight 1-0 battle and to the national champs from Temple 6-1.

Co-captains Fred Cloud and Dick Brooks led the booters in the scoring columns. Walt Mankin and Jim Thorne will lead the Bunnies in next season's contests.

Herb Maack's Burping Behemoths placed fourth in the Middle Atlantic Tournament held on the Herd's mats, while winning five of their eight dual meets.

They began the season by dropping two close matches to Lafayette and Temple, but bounced off the mats to tie Muhlenberg and defeat Delaware. The Herd entered the Middle Atlantic Tournament at Delaware as strong contenders for the league title studded with such veteran lettermen as Marsh Goulding, Bart Cappellini, Belber Robinson, Ed Mighell, Karl Miller, and Captain Chuck Mercer.

Bison eagers found that pre-season injuries and "big-school" competition can mean heart-break in the locker room and on the scoreboard.

The Orange and Blue eagers of Coach Jack Guy hit for five fast victories and the consolation spot in the Boston Invitational Tournament before the pre-season injuries began to hamper their floor game.

Injuries to Joe Gallagher and "Bucky" Strassner left the Bisons without their scoring leaders, and the fastbreak of Jack Guy without the much needed down court speed. Strassner was 37th nationally in scoring last season, while Gallagher placed 13th and set a new all-time Bucknell individual scoring mark. Injuries to Jim Poff, Bill Strella, and Jackie Webber helped to slow the high-scoring cage machine to a somewhat slower pace.

The addition of several "big" basketball schools to the schedule did not lighten the load of the Guymen. Such schools as Penn State, Boston College, Colgate, Connecticut, Rhode Island State, Buffalo and Cornell presented Jack Guy with more than a few problems of strategy.

Highlight of the season was the copping of third place in the Boston Tournament by virtue of a decisive win over Arizona State College at Tempe. "Bucky" Strassner represented Bucknell as he gathered All-Tournament First Team honors.

The eagers will lose eight seniors this June when sheepskins go to Joe Gallagher, forward; "Bucky" Strassner, forward; Marty McKibbin, forward; Jack Webber, guard; Connie DeLoea, center; Nat Longo, guard; Nick Schloeder, guard; and Art Wagner, center.

TRACK

The Orange and Blue Thinclads of Coach Bus Blum had one of their finest post-war seasons as they copped three wins while dropping only one meet. The annual Penn Relays in Philadelphia was the usual starting gun for the season. The Herd ran off with laurels in dual meets with Dickinson and Bloomsburg State Teachers and in a triangular meet with Gettysburg and Juniata.

Evidently Houseparty week-end was too much for the squad. It was on this weekend that the trackmen dropped their only meet, 62-60 to Muhlenberg at Allentown.

Two Bucknell records were added to the books as Stan Butterworth set a new shot put mark and Captain John Schaumberg hit for a new Bison record with the javelin.

The Herd was especially fortunate in having a five event man in Schaumberg. Top winners for the Herd were Connie DeLoca with the shot and discus, Jack Maebly with the pole vault, Al Farina and Jack Robeson in the running events along with Ed Mighell and Charlie Stewart in the distances.

BASEBALL

The defending champions of the Middle Atlantic Baseball League found their winning ways after splitting their first six games. Coach Bill Lane's hustlers then chalked up six verdicts in a row and finished as co-champions of the Middle Atlantic Conference with a season's report of nine victories, five losses and one tie.

The season started on a sour note due to an overabundance of the famous Bucknell rain. When the ground finally dried, the stickmen got down to the job at hand. The conference champs won every other contest for the first six games and then proceeded to turn on the heat. The base paths were never so hot as in the latter part of April when the Herd went on a six game winning streak. The situation cooled somewhat, but not until the Lanemen had successfully defended their Middle Atlantic title at Steeler Field in Bethlehem.

Hank Peter's netmen had what pre-season dopesters called a suicide schedule. After losing the first four of the season, the tennismen hit on a winning streak, but had to settle for a campaign of eight victories and nine defeats. The netmen were led by Captain Gray Rogers and number two man Paul Remmey. Al Goff, Skip Hess, Bill Reitz, and Nick Schloeder were other standouts on the familiar green courts. Spectators also saw some top matches between the coaches during the year.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Bucknell's weather may daunt a few coeds, but not our sports enthusiasts. Despite winter winds, they gleefully swat a little white ball around the hockey field. Some were selected to play at the Mid-East Conference, and one freshman made the topflight All Mid-East Team. Snowtime outside means basketball and volleyball warmups, while along about spring the girls eagerly flock to Loomis Field for baseball or tennis. The Women's Athletic Association works with the triumvirate from the gym department in planning inter-group sports, play days and other events.

MAY DAY

Each year the annual May Day pageant brings to a close the women's sports activities. The rhythmic and graceful dances of Orchesis, our modern dance club, is a highlight of the festivities given in honor of our mothers. Orchesis, under the direction of Miss Brown, makes several feature appearances each year. The girl crowned, "Queen of the May," is chosen by the women students on a basis of leadership and service to Bucknell, and is not revealed until the day of the pageant.

THE RECENT COLLECTED WORKS OF GUY PAYNE '09

Bucknell has many ambassadors coming and going in the interests of good-will and understanding.

Through the incessant labors of the Christian Association and the department of Religion, our university, though relatively small, has become an influence quite beyond its size for rightly interpreting the ideals of American democracy. For these higher achievements in Christian diplomacy we are deeply indebted to Forrest Brown and Doctor Charles Bond, long time leaders in University morals and religion.

Besides various and numerous conferences in all branches of the University, several outstanding events have crowned another year in the higher realms of religion and world leadership at Bucknell. In Religion-in-Life Week every type of religious influence is brought to bear upon our student body. Every major religious philosophy represented in our student body has the opportunity of receiving the inspiration of leadership congenial to his faith.

Another one of Bucknell's far reaching influences is a group of foreign students, reaching sixty-one in our last summer school. Through our own Harry Pierson, of the State Department, and now head of the Council of Foreign Relations, and Dr. C. Willard Smith, of the English Department, this and similar groups have become a tradition of many years standing. Here they learn the American way of life. Certainly this is a high honor to be hosts to so many foreign students from all parts of the world, and a great treat to us on this local campus who come to know and appreciate these live personalities.

As this article is written, we have just been honored by many ambassadors from many lands. The conference on Middle East problems brought experts who told us of many problems that faced the United Nations. A little knowledge breeds prejudices and contempt, but these conferences are an open door to the practical solutions of the world's misunderstandings.

Bucknell can be proud that it fosters only the highest levels of morality and religion and is a translator and interpreter of American Democracy in its best aspects.
